REPORT OF THE PROGRAM

1	Program Name	Importance of Communication 2017-2018
2	Date of program duration	06-03-2017 to 07-03-2017
3	Resource person:	Gracious JM, Msc, Msw, LLB, Pgdc.
4	Participants	10
5	Objective of program	Good communication skills in life will ensure every professional around us, understands us and we understand them. The students will be confident and assertive. There will be less misunderstanding and we will rarely have to face issues that come with poor communication. It will be easy for the students to make and keep friends.
6	Programme description	Both verbal and nonverbal communication, or body language, play a part in how one person understands another, and attribute to one's own soft skills Communication is usually described along a few major dimensions: message (what type of things are communicated), source/emisor/sender/encoder (from whom), form (in which form), channel (through which medium), destination/receiver/target/decoder (to whom). Wilbur Schram (1954) also indicated that we should also examine the impact that a message has (both desired and undesired) on the target of the message. Between parties, communication includes acts that confer knowledge and experiences, give advice and commands, and ask questions. These acts may take many forms, in one of the various manners of communication. The form depends on the abilities of the group communicating. Together, communication content and form make messages that are sent towards a destination. The target can be oneself, another person or being, another entity (such as a corporation or group of beings). The academic discipline that deals with processes of human communication is communication studies. The discipline encompasses a range of topics, from face-to-face conversation to mass media outlets such as television broadcasting. Communication studies also examines how messages are interpreted through the political, cultural, economic, semiotic, hermeneutic, and social dimensions of their contexts. Statistics, as a quantitative approach to communication science, has also been incorporated into research on communication science in order to help substantiate claims. communication is also interested in rhetoric as a method of investigating "oral and written communications, particularly with regard to the desired effect on an audience, and lately, with visual communications as well.

1	Program Name	Importance of Communication ,2018-2019
2	Date of program duration	21-03-2018 to 22-03-2018
3	Resource person:	Gracious JM, Msc, Msw, LLB, Pgdgc.
4	Participants	51
5	Objective of program	Good communication skills in life will ensure every professional around us, understands us and we understand them. The students will be confident and assertive. There will be less misunderstanding and we will rarely have to face issues that come with poor communication. It will be easy for the students to make and keep friends. Both verbal and nonverbal communication, or body language, play a part in how one person understands another, and attribute to one's own soft skills
6	Programme description	Communication is usually described along a few major dimensions: message (what type of things are communicated), source/emisor/sender/encoder (from whom), form (in which form), channel (through which medium), destination/receiver/target/decoder (to whom). Wilbur Schram (1954) also indicated that we should also examine the impact that a message has (both desired and undesired) on the target of the message. Between parties, communication includes acts that confer knowledge and experiences, give advice and commands, and ask questions. These acts may take many forms, in one of the various manners of communication. The form depends on the abilities of the group communicating. Together, communication content and form make messages that are sent towards a destination. The target can be oneself, another person or being, another entity (such as a corporation or group of beings). The academic discipline that deals with processes of human communication is communication studies. The discipline encompasses a range of topics, from face-to-face conversation to mass media outlets such as television broadcasting. Communication studies also examines how messages are interpreted through the political, cultural, economic, semiotic, hermeneutic, and social dimensions of their contexts. Statistics, as a quantitative approach to communication science, has also been incorporated into research on communication science in order to help substantiate claims. communication is also interested in rhetoric as a method of investigating "oral and written communications, particularly with regard to the desired effect on an audience, and lately, with visual communications as well.

1	Program Name	Importance of Communication ,2020-2021
2	Date of program duration	01-02-2020 to 02-02-2020
3	Resource person:	Gracious JM, Msc, Msw, LLB, Pgdcg.
4	Participants	66
5	Objective of program	Good communication skills in life will ensure every professional around us, understands us and we understand them. The students will be confident and assertive. There will be less misunderstanding and we will rarely have to face issues that come with poor communication. It will be easy for the students to make and keep friends. Both verbal and nonverbal communication, or body language, play a part in how one person understands another, and attribute to one's own soft skills
6	Programme description	Communication is usually described along a few major dimensions: message (what type of things are communicated), source/emisor/sender/encoder (from whom), form (in which form), channel (through which medium), destination/receiver/target/decoder (to whom). Wilbur Schram (1954) also indicated that we should also examine the impact that a message has (both desired and undesired) on the target of the message. Between parties, communication includes acts that confer knowledge and experiences, give advice and commands, and ask questions. These acts may take many forms, in one of the various manners of communication. The form depends on the abilities of the group communicating. Together, communication content and form make messages that are sent towards a destination. The target can be oneself, another person or being, another entity (such as a corporation or group of beings). The academic discipline that deals with processes of human communication is communication studies. The discipline encompasses a range of topics, from face-to-face conversation to mass media outlets such as television broadcasting. Communication studies also examines how messages are interpreted through the political, cultural, economic, semiotic, hermeneutic, and social dimensions of their contexts. Statistics, as a quantitative approach to communication science, has also been incorporated into research on communication science in order to help substantiate claims. communication is also interested in rhetoric as a method of investigating
